Moms Celebrate Mother's Day with Albuquerque local leaders for Summit in Support of Clean Air, Kids' Health

(Albuquerque, NM) – As families across the country celebrate Mother's Day, members of Moms Clean Air Force New Mexico and the Rio Grande Chapter of the Sierra Club will join local leaders to celebrate the critical role mothers play in protecting our children and our planet from harm. This year, moms are thinking big about what we want for Mother's Day, because there's just too much at stake when it comes to our children's health. The summit will also highlight the the Clean and Green Ordinance limiting single use plastic bags, as well as other local initiatives and progress from the recent legislative session.

What: Moms Clean Air Force "Mom Power Summit"

When: Saturday, May 11, 2019, 11 am – 1 pm, Speakers begin at noon.

Where: Hyder Park, 700 Richmond Dr. SE, Albuquerque, NM 87106

Who:

- State Senator Mimi Stewart
- State Senator Antoinette Sedillo Lopez
- State Representative Melanie Stansbury
- Mothers and children making a difference in their community including:
- Margarita Mercure Hibbs
- Anni Hanna
- Ashley McKenna
- Camilla Feibelman, Rio Grande Chapter of the Sierra Club
- Families from Global Warming Emergency

The New Mexico Mom Power Summit is an opportunity to recognize mothers in the Albuquerque community and the families who have worked tirelessly to make our community more sustainable and climate resilient. We will be celebrating the new Clean and Green Ordinance limiting single use plastic bags, and other progress from the recent legislative session. The public is encouraged to attend. There will live music, free food, and children's activities rain or shine.

Moms Clean Air Force, a national community of over 1,000,000 moms and dads committed to fighting air pollution and protecting clean air for America's children, is hosting Mom Power Summits in cities across the country. There are over 18,000 members of Moms Clean Air Force in New Mexico.
